Call for Papers CRESTCon 2019

The Call for Papers for CRESTCon 2019 is now officially open. We are delighted to announce that for next year we are dedicating a whole stream to the art of penetration testing – its techniques, tools and your war stories. This will be stream one.

Stream two will be dedicated to incident response and threat intelligence.

We are particularly looking for presentations that will showcase new or on-going security research, present new threats and vulnerabilities or highlight advances and innovation in security testing techniques, tools or methodologies.

If you have a proposal for a presentation, please email a synopsis along with your biography to allie.andrews@crest-approved.org by 30 November 2018 for consideration by the CREST conference review committee.

Speakers will be given a 30 or 45-minute session to include a Q&A.

UPDATES:

CREST at Cyber Security Chicago

CREST blew into the windy city for Cyber Security Chicago on 26 & 27 September 2018 at the McCormick Centre for the 2nd year running. CREST was exhibiting at the event, which also hosted a number of CREST members who were exhibiting including BAE Systems, F-Secure, IBM Security, Cisco and Spirent.

Ian Glover, President and Tom Brennan, US Chairman Exec of CREST both attended with Ian giving a talk in the Keynote Theatre entitled 'Please hack my car - Is bug bounty an appropriate way of testing autonomous vehicles?' The talk covered the topic of bug bounty programmes being launched at a remarkable pace with evidence of both good and bad practice. He suggested that there is no clear view on the appropriateness of using such programmes to test safety critical systems such as those used on autonomous vehicles. The question is would you be comfortable travelling in an autonomous vehicle where suppliers are actively allowing the vehicle to be hacked; or do you feel more confident travelling in a vehicle that has been openly tested by the crowd? This talk was very well received, and event attendees came to see Ian at the stand to discuss further. We will be recording Ian's talk from the event so that this can be watched on the CREST You tube, so please visit www.youtube.com/crestadvocate regularly to view.

CREST wants to say a big thank you to the organisers for all the assistance and help that was provided prior and during the event. Looking forward to Cyber Security Atlanta and Dallas. Please come and see Tom Brennan in the CREST Booth.

CREST at the UK Health Show

CREST exhibited at the UK Heath Show on 25 and 26 of September. This is the second time CREST attended the show and it was a great success. The event is always extremely busy and the audience was a good mix of healthcare, academia as well as the private sector.

There was an excellent presentation at the show from CREST Fellow, Gemma Moore, Cyberis - Assessing the APT: This discussed how the technical threat landscape has evolved in recent years, and the increasing emphasis on social engineering and attacks which target people and processes as well as technology.

UPDATES:

CREST at 44CON

CREST had a very busy and successful three days at 44CON 2018 once again. It was great to see so many CREST members and potential new members visiting the stand. We received lots of interest in our academic partner programme and CREST examinations. The event also offers a great social and networking opportunity. CREST would like to thank the 44CON organisers for welcoming CREST and for a seamless event.

CREST GDPR Position paper

CREST is putting together a position paper that will provide guidance for Penetration Testing companies and buyers on GDPR and how it affects penetration testing contacts. The writer of the report has been conducting interviews and if you would like to contribute to the debate and speak to him please let Debbie Jones know as soon as possible – debbie.jones@crest-approved.org

CREST Webinars and 'Day in the Life' Videos

We have been looking at ways to increase the amount of contributed Member content on our YouTube channel and are offering to record offline webinars on relevant topics that we will edit, post and promote. We will also record 'day in the life' videos and other video content through the webinar facility with Member companies for the YouTube channel. Just contact allie.andrews@crest-approved.org. We will either come to your offices or it can be arranged remotely.
